Patrizia Tenti graduated in Architecture from University of Florence with a thesis in Urban Planning and thanks to the passion infused by professors such as Gianni Pettana, Remo Buti etc. (some of the founders of Radical Architecture Movement in Florence) she decided to continue the research inside University.

She started a PHD program with the intent to investigate major issues of Urban Planning using GIS (Geographical Information System), the new frontier for the analysis of the landscape and its history. After this experience she acquired the title of Adjunct Professor and she obtained a 3rd year course of “Organisation of Industrial Design Production” at Industrial Design Faculty of Florence.
